

PREDICTED RESULTS & SCORES – UPDATE

Below are the actual placings and scores for day 1 along with my predictions for day 2 in which I am showing underlined the scoring performances in events where there are up three per team with only two to count.

I had predicted that the overnight order would be: Europe 226, Americas 220, Africa 149, Asia-Pacific 123. What actually happened was Americas 219, Europe 210, Africa 148, Asia-Pacific 134. It must be said that there were a couple of things that no-one could have predicted from last night's start lists, namely that Meseret Defar would compete and that Aleksandr Shustov (who I thought would win the high jump) did not. Nevertheless adding the real points to the predictions for Sunday still gives Europe a clear victory on 451 from Americas 405, Africa 300 and Asia-Pacific 274.

Mark Butler.
