These organizations act as data processors and are strictly controlled in how they may/may not use your personal data. We remain responsible for the protection of your data. World Athletics may also disclose your personal data where it believes it is compelled to do so by law.

8. Your rights in respect of personal information

World Athletics has a number of obligations in relation to how it handles your personal data. World Athletics is committed to the key principles of transparency, consent (where applicable), security and data minimisation. Alongside relying on World Athletics meeting its obligations, you have a number of rights that you are entitled to exercise.

(a) The right to object

One key right is the right to stop processing (right to object): This allows you to do three things:

- You object to the disclosure of your information to the third parties listed above, but we must inform you that it will be difficult to process your application/registration for the purposes of providing the basis on which you participate in the sport of athletics without that information being disclosed.
- You have the right to object to World Athletics processing information about you where we process on the basis of 'legitimate interest'. If you believe this to be the case, you should contact us and provide an explanation of your particular situation so that we be able to appreciate the interests at stake.
- You have the right to ask World Athletics not to process personal data for purposes of sending you direct marketing. World Athletics does not use your personal data for such purposes.

(b) The other rights are:

- Right of access: In accordance with the provisions of the data protection laws, you have certain rights to request a copy of your own personal data held by World Athletics. You can request to receive a copy of your personal information in a readily understandable format within a reasonable timeframe (one month from the date of the request).
- Right to rectification: You have the right to ask to rectify inaccurate or incomplete personal data which it has about you after you have submitted your application. Where World Athletics positively knows that the personal information that it is processing is inaccurate or incomplete, World Athletics shall, as appropriate, rectify, amend, complete or update the relevant personal information as soon as possible. Where appropriate, if the personal information in question has been disclosed to a third party that is known or believed to continue to process the personal information, the third party shall be informed of the change as soon as possible.
- Right to erasure: you have the right to ask to erase your personal data in some circumstances, including where the information held by World Athletics is no longer necessary for the purposes for which it is processed, you withdraw your consent to its use, or we can no longer lawfully process the data. However, if you do exercise this right then it will make providing the basis for you to be considered accreditation to the event difficult as we would not be able to decide if you can attend the event.
- Right to restriction of processing: you can restrict our processing of your data in some circumstances. This applies where, for example, if you contest the accuracy of the personal data we use or object to us using the information on the basis of a 'legitimate interest' (see part 1, above (the right to object)). Please note that where you ask us to restrict processing, we can still store it subject to the retention period, and use it to establish or defend legal claims, which may run beyond the retention period stated.

- Right to data portability: This permits you to receive from World Athletics a copy of your personal data in an electronic file or format that commonly be used on different devices and machines, and to transfer your personal data from World Athletics to another data controller or have the data transmitted directly between two data controllers.
- Right to object to automatic processing: you have the right not to be subject to decisions based solely on automated processing which significantly affect them (at time of writing, World Athletics does not process your personal data on its systems for the purposes of making decisions based on automatic processing and this right is not applicable).
