

Looking back on a memorable 2021

Earlier this week, Jamaican sprinter Elaine Thompson-Herah and Norwegian 400m hurdler Karsten Warholm were named the Athletes of the Year at the World Athletics Awards 2021.

They were among the 10 award winners announced during the virtual ceremony as the sport looked back on a remarkable season.

If you missed any of the show, it is still available to watch on the World Athletics YouTube channel, along with some exclusive post-event interviews.

53rd World Athletics Congress sets ambitious course for the sport

The 53rd Congress of World Athletics concluded following the adoption of a series of important initiatives designed to accelerate the growth of the sport through the next decade.

Congress approved the World Plan 2022-2030 which sets clear objectives against World Athletics' vision for the sport. It builds on the four-year strategic plan and the four pillars of "more participation, more people, more fans, and more partners".

Crucially, the World Plan includes a renewed Kids' Athletics development programme which will be rolled out around the world over the coming months.

The Congress also received the first report of the Human Rights Working Group, which includes six recommendations for World Athletics to follow to ensure that human rights are protected and respected in the sport.
